In Greek Mythology, "PEACE" was made into a character called the goddess, Eirene. Eirene was a daughter of the god Zeus. In Greek art, Eirene was depicted as a young lady carrying a cornucopia (a symbol of plenty and care), a torch and a sceptre. The people of Greece wanted a way to talk about the good feelings they had when they were not at war. The goddess Eirene was the part of their stories that told about peace.
