

RESTORATION OF WOOD

SYNOPSIS

Howard "Wood" Woodley, a gifted but drifting Caucasian sailor, lives aboard the ISSA, a sailboat named after Issa Perez, the Latina he never stopped loving. Haunted by memories of their past, Wood clings to dreams of reclaiming his former glory on the water while struggling with the fallout of his failed marriage to Barbara Ray (BR). His life takes an unexpected turn when a racing accident introduces him to Perla Perez, a talented young sailor who soon discovers she is Wood's daughter, born from his long-ago relationship with Issa.

As Wood grows closer to Perla and reconnects with Issa, old wounds resurface. Determined to keep them apart, BR works to undermine Perla's chances in the Governor's Cup sailing race and reports Issa to immigration authorities. Faced with losing the woman he loves again, Wood steps up, defending Issa and proposing marriage to help her remain in the country.

Through setbacks and reconciliation, Wood, Issa, and Perla begin to rebuild the family they never had. In the Governor's Cup race, Wood hands control of the ISSA to Perla, who proves herself a gifted captain. But when family becomes more important than winning, they choose love and belonging over victory. In doing so, Wood finally finds the life he was meant to have.
