Happy 2017!

Happy New Year Everyone!!!! We hope everyone enjoyed wonderful holiday activities. Now is the time to focus on new beginnings, new goals, and new achievements to strive for and conquer. This is your opportunity to make this manifestation time magical. When you're making that New Year's resolution list, you're really manifesting and directing energy for the next 12 months, so pay attention! Be serious this year and be amazed at what you can make happen.

We can't thank each and everyone of you enough for helping Nature's Treasures continue to grow and prosper. Your purchases not only affect you and those you love, but also provide someone else an opportunity to grow, learn and heal. We are here to serve you and your needs so please communicate! Tell us what you need or were instructed to achieve. As large as we are, we are still all about providing what YOU need and what Spirit and the universe wants introduced to the masses. With our Tucson Buying Trip fast approaching, be sure to give us a list of goodies you would like to see available in the store. Whether it's a specific mineral, statue, jewelry line, or something you've read about, try to let us know before February 11, 2017.

I am constantly reminded that the world as a whole, and each individual person (myself included), is still evolving and learning the opportunities and tools that are available to help us achieve our goals and objectives. As we start educating our children about their energy capabilities and they begin to awaken and become more aware of the subtle energies of the world, maybe they will be empowered to achieve the world peace we are all striving for. Nature's Treasures will be here to help provide and guide as much as we can. I hope 2017 will be a spectacular year for you and everyone you care about.... that should about cover the world!

Many Blessings!

January's Gemstone

Garnet

Garnet is a metamorphic mineral that forms under high pressures and temperatures making it hard and tenacious. It's no wonder that this stone, in all of the conditions it's formed under, gives strength and endurance to the user. While Garnet's flash stimulates the survival instinct to take action courageously, it also helps to lessen anger, especially towards oneself.

The many colors and internal light of Garnet inspire a sense of lightness and brightness, illuminating dark places during dark times. Garnet is a good stone for bringing joy and hope. Garnet inspires love and passion, devotion and loyalty. A stone of commitment, Garnet encourages personal relationships of all kinds, and is a useful relationship tool both personally and in business.

Not only used in jewelry as a gemstone, Garnet sands are often used as an abrasive for polishing in the lapidary community.

Meet Our Staff

Katie!

Ladies and gentlemen, it is with great esteem that we present Katie, a Nature's Treasures veteran of over 3 years! Living proof that great things come in small packages, she is a tour de force of knowledge about all of our wares. Whether you're cleansing a chakra or looking for the perfect lab specimen, she is eager to share her wealth of knowledge with all of our prized customers! During her stint in this realm, she finds herself drawn to cats, tacos, R&B and perhaps her favorite thing of all, performance arts, particularly poi. Now that she is of suitable adulthood age, she is pursuing a degree in biochemistry, which she will use to make it easier for developing countries to have access to clean water. Born in Houston, Katie has been settled in Austin for the last 13 years, where she raises an adorable 2-year old named Star, and fully expects to be reincarnated as a unicorn.

Reflect. Accept. Let Go. Move Forward

From the Blog at CrystalsByNature.com

As I begin to think about the rapidly approaching New Year, that thinking turns to reflecting upon the year past. Reflection is good for the soul, isn't it? So many times my reflection turns into dwelling and doubt creeps in...the thoughts of "if only" and the "whys" nag at me. Sometimes I want to share a life lesson; one of those times is now. Then I look in the mirror and say out loud, "You can NOT change the past. It is done. It's over. Reflect, accept, let go, move forward." That's what I've learned in 2016.

Frankly, this past year kicked my ass. Crucial aspects of my life had been a constant for quite a while and then bam...life landed its swift kick and at age 22, I had zero experience in handling any of it. A romantic relationship ended, a friend suddenly died, and then there was the whole unemployment thing. I was drowning in grief and denial and didn't even know it. And then something as simple as taking a yoga class drastically changed my mindset. The negative reversed to positive. I was in the right place at the exact right time. An amazing life lesson just happened....

Cosmic Love Connections creator, Adrian, told us recently this wonderful little story: "Oh, I have to tell ya this. A friend of mine bought me a X-mas gift last year. Well, I finally saw her Saturday and when she arrive she asked what I was doing.

I said, 'For my biz, I created these and placing them in stores, and I just had a reorder from a store in Texas named Nature's Treasures'. She said, 'No way! Here is your gift. It's a labradorite angel I got from Nature's Treasures in Austin, Texas!!!'. And we are Idaho peeps!!!"

The Treasure Tome: A Trove of Knowledge

Petrified Wood: The Wood that Rocks!
by Michael J. Kallstrom

All fossils are rocks, but not all rocks are fossils. Once-living organisms can become preserved and, under the right conditions, the organic tissues of the organism can slowly become replaced by minerals such as calcite or quartz turning the remains into stone. This process applies to wood as well as the better known ammonites and dinosaur bones most people think of as fossils.

Petrified wood can occur in any number of colors due to trace elements that find their way into the replacement minerals. Because this process occurs atom by atom, many of the wood structures and textures can be perfectly preserved including bark, knots, and even tree rings! Sometimes the knots and hollows of a limb will fill in with druzy quartz. Although most petrified wood ends up replaced by the chalcedony member of the quartz family, some specimens have been known to form from hematite and even malachite replacement. This process can take thousands of years to occur after the decades to centuries of life represented by the wood itself.

As one would expect, petrified wood has been adopted by the New Age community as a talisman representing new beginnings and ancient wisdom because of its transformation from a mortal state to an immortal form. The strong association with trees that the petrified wood comes from means that it can help one to appreciate nature and the nature of time. With this appreciation one recognizes the cyclical patterns of life, death and new life, which can then be applied to transform oneself and begin a new season of one's lifetime. The grounding properties of petrified wood

There are plenty of places that you can go rock-hounding for your own petrified wood. Toledo Bend in East Texas hosts petrified palm wood, the state stone, representing a time 100 million years ago when Toledo was beachfront property due to a shallow sea that spanned across most of the state.
