ROCKFEST TIME AGAIN!

Let the games begin! Four years ago the City of Austin declared August 8th as Nature's Treasures Day thus starting the tradition of RockFest as a celebration of rocks with fun and games for family and friends. This year, for Meet the Miner, we're excited to bring to Austin, Albert "Zee" Haag, a third generation miner, who owns the secondary mineral rights to the largest copper mine in the world producing numerous copper minerals like azurite, malachite, chrysocolla and turquoise. He has mined in Arizona, Mexico, North Africa and Southern Africa both above ground by hand and underground with heavy equipment. He will be talking about discovering Sirius Amethyst, mining for tourmaline in South Africa, bringing the EarthKeeper quartz to the United States and his new Illuminated Mineral Art pieces. Zee will be bringing for sale tourmaline and Sirius amethyst he has mined, along with some of his unique mineral art pieces. What a great opportunity to bring the kids and have a fun packed day playing among Mother Nature's fabulous creations and getting to personally ask your questions about mining minerals.

Most all of our new goodies from our trip to INATS have arrived and the store is full of wonderful new items. Come check us out! Thanks to all who visited our booth at the Metaphysical & Holistic Fair. Its always a treat to meet new people and see so many familiar faces.

Summer is almost over with back to school specials starting so be sure to get out and enjoy your vacation time before it slips away. Recharge yourself with a reconnect with Mother Nature. Whether it's one hour, one day or a week, take the time to sink your toes into some earth. You'll be glad you did!

August Blessings

August's Birthstone

Peridot

Peridot is a gem-quality, transparent variety of olivine, a mineral composed of magnesium-iron silicates. The color of olivine ranges from olive to lime green, sometimes with a brownish tinge.

Some of the finest peridot stones are called "evening emeralds" because they appear greener under artificial light.

Peridot crystals are found in the Mogok district of Burma, Norway, Brazil, China, Kenya, Sri Lanka, Australia, and Mexico. In the United States, small stones can be found in Arizona.

Peridot has also been found in some meteorites.

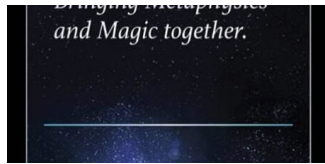

Peridot is among the oldest known gemstones. Ancient Egyptians, around 1580 B.C. to 1350 B.C., created beads from Peridot. Peridot was regarded since ancient times as the symbol of the sun. The Greeks believed that it brought royal dignity upon its wearer. During the Middle Ages, peridot was pierced, then strung on the hair of an ass and attached to the left arm to ward off evil spirits.

NATURE'S TREASURES IN THE COMMUNITY

Mother Nature is an artist, so Nature's Treasures was happy to participate with The Contemporary Austin Art Academy in their Second Saturday on July 8 featuring two new petrified wood themed sculptures. The families that participated created their own tree sculptures out of paper and added crystal growing solution to create their own crystalline gardens.

Our geology specialist was onsite to teach the families about the color pallet of minerals, Petrified Wood, and crystals that you can grow at home!

Our geology specialist and retail manager got dressed up to wish one kiddo a happy birthday on July 15 at her offsite rock-themed birthday party! With kids' rock-climbing, crystals and fossils, we hope she had a rockin' birthday!

Nature's Treasures welcomed boys and girls from the River City Youth Foundation on July 27 for a guided tour focused on geode formation and the Quartz family of minerals.

The Treasure Tome: A Trove of Knowledge

Seriously Sirius Amethyst

By Michael J. Kallstrom, MS Geoscience

Although originally discovered in Boudi, Morocco by local villagers in 1990, Sirius Amethyst was not mined or distributed internationally until 2007 when Nature's Treasures received the first batch of Sirius Amethyst in buckets sent directly from the mine by the miner Albert "Zee" Haag. When the amethysts arrived, it had not yet been named. Nature's Treasures was given the opportunity to name the stone and, decided on Sirius after asking for guidance of what the stone should be named before retiring one evening, decide on Sirius after receiving the name upon awakening the next morning. Thus the name Sirius Amethyst was born to describe the mostly double-terminated amethyst phantoms encased in clear quartz with pink hematite inclusions. The hematite inclusions are concentrated in the clear quartz and actually appear to be pseudomorphs after preexisting goethite. Between 2008 and 2015, these mineral inclusions were believed to be lepidochrosite. The amethyst itself has a bluish fire to it as opposed to the normal reddish-violet fire found in most amethyst.

As Nature's Treasures and other new owners of this powerful amethyst meditated with the stone, the general consensus was that Sirius Amethyst attuned itself with the Third Eye, heightening intuition and insight. When placed on the forehead, blue flashes were experienced by many of the employees indicating an opening of the Third Eye. In 2008 Larry Coyote blogged about Sirius Amethyst, describing its properties in greater detail. In addition to opening the Third Eye and Crown Chakras, Sirius Amethyst was reported to aid tremendously in past life recall as well as helping one understand their life missions.

Furthermore, Sirius Amethyst was said to help alleviate addictions of every kind and restructure one's life and genes, making it a major tool for spiritual, mental and physical healing.

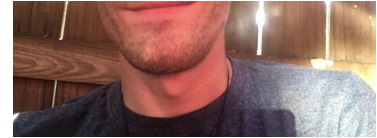

Being the first gem quality discovery in the Boudi-area, Sirius Amethyst stimulated the local economy by providing jobs and resources previously unavailable to local villagers. As this material made its way into the global market it became sought after for its unique hour-glass amethyst phantoms and luscious red inclusions for use in jewelry. When fully saturated, Sirius Amethyst offers a unique hue for faceted stones as well.
