WeDriveU

WeDriveU provides commuter buses for some of Silicon Valley's biggest companies, helping employees manage commutes that can exceed four hours and 100 miles roundtrip. Increasingly, those buses are electric, enabling companies to slash their carbon emissions and meet corporate sustainability goals, says WeDriveU CEO Erick Van Wagenan. Matt Hotchkiss, the Sales Manager for Equipment Finance at Wells Fargo Commercial Banking, both provides traditional financing to the company and leases them the custom-built coaches.

It's Not All Perfect

ACCORDING TO THE U.S. BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS, THERE WERE 498,200 TRANSIT AND GROUND PASSENGER TRANSPORTATION WORKERS AS OF JUNE 2019.

WOMEN MADE UP 15% OF THE TRANSPORTATION WORKFORCE.

A Year of Progress

A Long Way to Go

“As of 2019, women comprised only 15 percent of the 14.8 million transportation workforce, with even fewer in decision-making roles. According to U.S. census data, the proportion of women in transportation occupations only increased by three percent from 2005 to 2019.”

-WTS International #10In10

...in the American workforce as a whole, for 100 men promoted to manager, only 85 women were promoted—with a much larger gap for women of color (58 Black women and 71 Latinas).

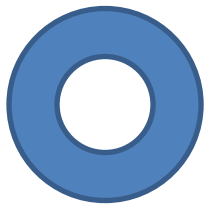

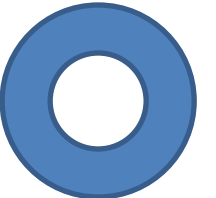

The disparity in leadership is even more marked, with women making up only 12.9% of executive officers and 13% of board members.
