By increasing the availability of consistent and accurate information across the Internet, Marqii helps businesses move closer to the top of "__ near me" search results.

Marqii is looking for a Backend Developer to be a part of our next stage of technical growth. Our priority is someone with a learning, growth, and leadership mindset. If this sounds like you but you're not sure how your experience measures up, drop us a line anyway!

What You'll Do:

- Build and operate the systems and services that power the Marqii product experience.
- Take new features from concept to shipped product.
- Come up with new product directions and contribute ideas.
- Interview and recruit more talented engineers to join Driveway as we scale.
- Improve our engineering standards, tooling, and processes.

Who You Are:

- You have 4+ years of development experience—designing and building high-volume, scalable SaaS applications from end-to-end.
- You have expertise in TypeScript/React, AWS, Postgres and Dynamo development.
- You're driven by impact. You are excited to work on hard problems when they have a big impact on customer experience.
- You care deeply about the quality of the software and systems you build, but understand the balance between idealism and pragmatism. You have a desire to work in an environment which values speed of iteration and individual autonomy.
- You're a problem solver. You can think in systems and work from first principles to design a solution and take action. You have a strong desire and ability to work through ambiguity.

- You have excellent technical communication skills. You believe clear, accessible documentation is just as important as any in-app feature. You enjoy writing and sharing your knowledge with others. Working in the open is your default.
- You value inclusivity, collaboration, and the freedom to tackle ambitious goals while having fun.
- If you think you'd be a great fit but aren't sure if you meet all of these requirements, we still encourage you to apply!
