Facts and Myths?

Myth 1: "This is quackery.
We aren't exposed and we certainly aren't toxic."

TRUTH: EXPOSURE IS OVERWHELMING.

Hormone-disrupting chemicals lurk in newborns' cord blood and mother's milk. Pesticides and herbicides disrupt hormones even at levels deemed non-toxic.

Facts and Myths?

Myth 2: "Chemicals are thoroughly tested for safety. It can't be bad for me, otherwise it would be illegal."

TRUTH: THE EPA STRUGGLES TO TEST OVER 2000 NEW CHEMICALS YEARLY.

Safety data is reactive, not proactive.
Labels focus only on "believed" active ingredients, ignoring cumulative effects.

Facts and Myths?

Myth 3: "The dose makes the poison."

TRUTH: DOSING ISN'T LINEAR.

Tiny doses, especially hormone disruptors, can be highly impactful. Combinations create significant effects, even at low individual doses. Exposure leads to epigenetic changes with transgenerational effects.
