

R. Thomas Friedman, R.Ph.

A graduate of The American Boychoir School, the music conservatory of Ohio Wesleyan University, and the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Tom opened Horsham Square Pharmacy in 1986, and has proudly and passionately served the Horsham community for over 37 years.

Tom has served on the boards of The American Red Cross, The American Boychoir School, The Hatboro-Horsham Educational Foundation, The Princeton Center for Arts and Education, Gloria Dei Communities, and the Century Board of Mass. College of Pharmacy.

A strong believer in community service, education and healthcare advocacy, Tom has contributed over $150,000 to over 100 local organizations, community projects, local shelters and food banks, youth activities, sports teams and local school events. Tom regularly speaks to local senior groups and organizations on many topics including diabetes, shingles, drug interactions and medication safety. Tom has been a preceptor to all three Philadelphia pharmacy schools, and has served as a guest lecturer at Temple School of Pharmacy, as well as being a guest speaker for the National Association of Community Pharmacists at their national meeting. Honored by Drug Topics Magazine as one of the top 100 pharmacies in the country, Tom's other honors and awards include the Merck Community Service Award, The Knepp-Platas Service Award, The American Boychoir Distinguished Alumni Award, and The Hatboro-Horsham Golden Apple for community service, twice.

Passionate about his lifelong connection with music, Tom has served as the conductor of the Thomas Jefferson University Choir, performed with and served as the musical director of the Jenkintown Music Theatre, and currently performs with the outstanding musical ensemble, Cantus Novus.

Tom resides in Lansdale, Pa. with his extraordinary wife, Judy, and their Himalayan cat, Pia.
