Humanity Road – Japan
Activation: Japan Earthquake Sitrep No. 1
Publication Date: 16 April 2016, 09:00 (JST)

Highlights

Humanity Road activated its Disaster Response Team on 16 April 2016 local time in response to a 7.0 earthquake that occurred on Kyushu Island in the Kumamoto Prefecture of Japan. This quake followed a series of multiple quakes over the past several days, the largest of which was a 6.2 on the 14th. Following the 6.2 quake, there were reports of significant damage in the Kumamoto area and especially in the town of Mashiki. A tsunami advisory was issued by the Japanese Meteorological Agency but was suspended.

This report was created using information from social media and includes verified numbers and links and some initial information on the status of various sectors including hospitals and communications.

There are reports of significant damage to buildings, hospitals, roads and bridges. The government has decided to expand rescue operations: SDF up to 20,000, police up to 2800, fire department up to about 2700 (source). Government websites in Kumamoto prefecture are down, possibly due to a lack of power or internet service. Residents of Kumamoto Nishihara Village have been advised to evacuate due to fears of a dam break (source). Much of Kumamoto is without household water (source). The Aso Bridge to Aso Village has collapsed which may hinder relief efforts (source).

There are reports of damage at Kumamoto Hospital where patients have been evacuated to the parking lot (source). There are also reports of a partial collapse at Forest City Hospital (source).

Situation Overview

Background: On 15 April 2016 at 16:25:06 (UTC), 16 April, 01:25 (JST), a magnitude 7.1 earthquake was reported on the island of Kyushu in Japan (source). The magnitude was later adjusted to 7.0. This quake comes following a series of multiple quakes over the past several days, the largest of which was a 6.2 on the 14th. Following the 6.2 quake, there were already reports of significant damage in the Kumamoto area and especially in the town of Mashiki. Initially following the 7.0 larger quake a Tsunami Advisory was issued by the Japanese Meteorological Agency but was later suspended. The Pacific Tsunami Warning Center issued information but no further details were needed, and there is no threat of a Pacific wide tsunami. Due to the previous quakes there were already shelters open in several areas.
