PBPA Texas Legislative Report
88th Regular Session; January 10, 2023-May 29, 2023
Published June 2023

Members,

To say that this session was unpredictable and difficult would be an understatement. While we are certainly veterans to the Texas Legislative experience, even for long-time observers, this was...unique. From normal rumblings of discontent leading to a race for Speaker, that was dispatched easily, to the quick start by the Texas Senate, and the reconstitution of House Committees; all expected the focus to be on the large Texas surplus, $32.7 billion dollars large, which was already promised for long time investments.

The areas of focus for these expenditures included tax relief, supporting education, investing in infrastructure like water needs, and border security measures. There was also reason to believe, given the focus on electricity that began with Winter Storm Uri last Session there would be a significant focus ensuring that the Texas electric grid would address perverse incentives that encourage unreliable electricity at the expense of long term reliability and planning that a state growing with population and business needs.

Additionally, after an unusual session in 2021 due to the pandemic and the calls for special sessions, this session was supposed to be a return to normalcy that most of the country has been experiencing in their daily lives.

While the beginning of session seemed to be moving with a focus on budget and substantive issues, the points of this session showcased highly controversial issues between the two major parties and the difference in focus between the two chambers. Further this session was mired in scandal and included the arrest of a member, the expulsion of another (the first in more than one hundred years), and the impeachment of a statewide elected official.

At the time of this writing all signs point to the end of the first special session, lacking the passage of tax relief legislation, and the calling of a second special session.

While these issues, controversies, priorities, or scandals are not the business of our fair organization, I mention them because to not include the context for which the session occurred would be a misrepresentation of the broader lens through which this session must be looked through.

At our weekly meetings, it was mentioned early and often, without editorial, that it is rarely the issues that we are working on that are the instigators of challenges, but rather our issues become victims of broader personalities and conflicts in this political arena.

Though to be clear, for 140 days between January and the end of May, the Texas Legislature worked to address the challenges they saw over the past two years and prepare the Lone Star State for what it may see in the next 18 months.

This included the adoption of a more than $300 billion budget that included vital funding for the Railroad Commission of Texas (RRC) and the Texas Commission of Environmental Quality (TCEQ). Our focus, given the recent increase in seismic activity, has been to better arm state agencies and institutions to analyze and provide data driven regulatory frameworks that ensure we are making the best decisions and not rushing to uninformed judgement.

To that end, PBPA led and was successful in supporting funding for the TexNet seismic monitoring system housed at the Bureau of Economic Geology. The funding should lead to better analysis of real time data and the support of efforts for the RRC to contract with outside experts on advanced modeling. As we have on all challenging issues, we are committed to utilizing the data and information that operators are investing in and gathering, and having our state agencies and academic institutions utilize that information to make data driven best practices.

Texas also invested in produced water through continued funding of the Produced Water Consortium that is housed at Texas Tech University. This will support pilot projects to continue innovation in this important sector.

Texas also took a bold step with the passage of Senate Bill 28 and Senate Joint Resolution 75, which voters will also have the opportunity to support or oppose. These measures jointly create the Texas Water Fund, focusing on new water supplies. The ambitious goal for this program is to finance the creation of seven million acre-feet of new water supplies by 2033.

On electricity, this session the Texas Legislature also passed House Bill 1500, the reauthorization of the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) as well as the Office of Public Utility Counsel (OPUC) and the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT), the organization responsible for grid operations for the majority of Texas.

In House Bill 1500, are numerous reform provisions, among them is a new requirement that variable generating units are allocated costs for reliability, as well as a requirement that these generating units produce the power they promise, in addition to other firming requirements. The bill also included provisions to limit the cost of any performance credit mechanisms to $1 billion a year, which would be spread across the market at large.

Voters will also have the opportunity to support or oppose a constitutional amendment, filed as Senate Joint Resolution 93, which in conjunction with enabling legislation in Senate Bill 2627, will establish a loan program of about $7 billion to incentivize the creation of natural gas plants for electric generation.

In addition to that, House Bill 5, which was also passed this session reinstates a statewide economic development plan and also includes the property tax abatements for these natural gas plants but prohibits renewable assets from utilizing this new program.

Because there is no point in investing so much in durable assets that are stranded, the Legislature also sought to address transmission issues, and will be studying further needs for transmission in high growth areas and the Permian Basin. PBPA will be vigilant in reviewing the Commissions work to ensure that a plan to accomplish the findings of this study is completed within the next two years, as provisions of law authorizing this review expire shortly after the end of the next legislative session in 2025.

This Legislature did, emphatically, support the states authority to regulate several issues rather than allow a patchwork of ordinances adopted by local governments including a broad pre-emption bill, a bill that makes the state the primary regulator on greenhouse gas emissions, a bill that prohibits local governments to adopt climate charters, and a bill that protects the energy choice of Texas consumers. All of the following bills were passed and sent to the Governor.

House Bill 2127 by Representative Dustin Burrows in the House and sponsored by Senator Brandon Creighton in the Senate would prohibit a municipality or county from adopting, enforcing, or maintaining an ordinance, order, or rule regulating conduct in a field of regulation occupied by a provision of certain statutory codes unless the municipal or county regulation was expressly authorized by another statute.

Senate Bill 784 by Senator Brian Birdwell and sponsored by the Permian Basin's own Brooks Landgraf, ensures, to the extent not preempted by federal law, the state has exclusive jurisdiction over the regulation of greenhouse gas emissions in the State of Texas. The bill further clarifies that a municipality or other political subdivision may not enact or enforce an ordinance or other measure that directly regulates greenhouse gas emissions.

Senate Bill 1860 by Senator Bryan Hughes and sponsored by Dean of the Permian Basin delegation and the Texas House, Speaker Tom Craddick, ensured that the local governments could not adopt or enforce climate charters as some local governments had sought to do across the country and even in Texas.

Last, but certainly not least, was the passage of Senate Bill 1017 also by Senator Birdwell and sponsored by Rep. Brooks Landgraf, which protected energy choice for consumers across the state. In light of those that oppose oil and gas production and use, this bill was filed to ensure that political subdivisions are prohibited from adopting or enforcing regulations that limit access to specific fuels sources or prohibit the sale of engines based on their fuel source.

In addition to those successes, PBPA fought hard to oppose DC style legislation that we have seen across the border in New Mexico, including the effort to pass a "Green Amendment" which would have authorized causes of action for environmental issues as well as many other pieces of legislation that would have stymied or prohibited oil and gas development.

This interim we also expect to have to work to ensure that the legislation passed is implemented by state agencies in the manner with which it was adopted and not utilized to penalize taxpayers, businesses, or the oil and gas industry. This includes rulemaking at the RRC, the TCEQ, and rulemaking at the PUC to enhance transparency, encourage the construction of transmission and affordable, reliable, thermal generation, transmission, and much more.

Members, thank you for your support and work this session. PBPA is proud to represent those who sincerely care about the long term health and vitality of the Permian Basin oil and gas industry. Your daily commitment is unmatched and our state and nation are better because of you, your families, your employees, and all those that live, work, and raise their families in the Permian Basin.

While this summary is not exhaustive of the work, I would hope that you have the opportunity to review some of the bills listed in our tracking as well as their final disposition for the 88th Regular Session.

I am proud of the PBPA's efforts this session, led again by our Legislative Director Michael Lozano. Michael successfully and confidently ran every weekly Legislative Committee providing timely updates and gathering important feedback from PBPA members. He spent countless hours helping educate Legislators and staff and for that, I am grateful.

God Bless Texas!

HCR= House Concurrent Resolution

HJR=House Joint Resolution

SB=Senate Bill

SCR=Senate Concurrent Resolution

SJR=Senate Joint Resolution

SR=Senate Resolution

NOTES:

House and Senate Concurrent Resolutions are largely for recognition and are passed through both chambers while “simple” House and Senate Resolutions are done independently in each chamber.

Senate and House Joint Resolutions are amendments to the Texas Constitution and require passage of 2/3rds of the membership in both chambers before they are presented to voters. The Governor may not veto constitutional amendments.
