Self-Funded Health Plans with Stop-Loss

Executive Summary

Self-funding with Stop-Loss may be one of the more effective ways employers can influence the rising costs of healthcare coverage. The plan design may help employers lower their premiums, have the freedom of provider choice, and retain money from their claims account after a low-claim year.

Benefits

Lower Cost

- Elimination of most premium tax
There is no premium tax on self-funded claim expenditures. Premium tax applies only to the Stop-Loss insurance, which is a fraction of the total premium.
- Lower cost of administration
Administration costs for a self-funded program are generally lower than those included in the premium by an insurance carrier.
- Limitation of carrier profit margin
The profit margin and risk charge of an insurance carrier are higher than a Self-Funded Health Plan with Stop-Loss.
- Transparent fee and cost disclosure
Monthly reports provide updates on your claims account.

More Employer Control

- Control of plan design
The employer has flexibility in choosing the appropriate plan design, deductible, and co-insurance.
- Telemedicine
Save money on health care by giving your employees a more convenient and low-cost option.
- Unlimited provider option
Provides in-network access to the doctors and facilities of your choice.
- USA-based customer services
Pre-authorization, claims service, and cost reporting.
- Claims account
In low-claim years, unused claim funds are retained by the employer.
